Customizable sizes and shape

PU leather has a good texture.

PU leather can simulate the textures of real leather (such as lychee pattern, smooth surface, frosted finish, etc.) through technological processing. Its surface is delicate and textured, presenting an overall concise and neat visual effect, which is highly suitable for the business scenarios of briefcases.

PU leather briefcase storage bag waterproof and moisture-proof

The surface of PU leather usually has a dense coating, which has good water resistance and can effectively prevent liquid penetration.

Lightweight and easy to carry

PP woven bag material has a low density and light weight, so the small crossbody bag made from it is overall lightweight and burden-free. Whether carried over one shoulder, cross-body, or held temporarily in the hand, it does not cause significant pressure on the shoulders or hands. It is suitable for long-term carrying, especially for occasions that require easy travel such as shopping and outings.

PP woven bag small crossbody bag

Cost-effective

PP woven bags are basic materials produced in industrial mass quantities, with relatively low raw material costs and simple processing techniques. Therefore, the price of such small crossbody bags is usually affordable. Compared with similar products made of leather, canvas and other materials, they can provide practical functions at a lower cost, making them suitable for consumers with limited budgets or those pursuing high cost performance.

Lightweight material

PVC has a low density, so the tags made from it are lightweight. When hung on suitcases, they do not significantly increase the overall weight of the luggage, thus avoiding adding extra burden to travel.

Fluorescent-colored PVC luggage tag

Low cost and high cost performance.

PVC raw materials are affordable, and the processing technology is mature. Therefore, the production cost of PVC luggage tags is relatively low, and their selling prices are also more economical.
