Introduction to St. Dulan Company

Company Profile

Founded in 2019, Saint Land Fragrance Technology (Guangzhou) Co., Ltd. quickly became an integrated enterprise in ambient fragrance services, covering R&D, production, marketing, and e-commerce.

Leveraging deep industry experience, we innovate with cutting-edge two-fluid technology for fine atomization and stable diffusion, and use big data to develop market-driven scents.

Our smart manufacturing adopts Industry 4.0 (IoT, AI, big data) with strict quality control, enabling efficient large-scale production.

Our expert team streamlines costs and offers tailored OEM solutions and joint R&D to perfectly align with client branding.

Origin of the Brand

We are a fragrance company led by the spirit of Sisters of St. Teresa of Avila, committed to conveying love and care through fragrance, our brand is not only a fragrance product, but also a lifestyle advocate, a selfless dedication to the spirit of fraternity and living attitude. We firmly believe that fragrance not only pleases the sense of smell, but also heals the soul and enlightens the life.

We are aware of the stress and anxiety of modern society, we will be the love and care of Sisters of St. Teresa of Avila spirit into each product, through the innovative fragrance experience, is committed to let each customer in the busy life of their own to find peace and tranquility.

Mother Teresa

Mother Teresa, also known as Mother St. Teresa of Avila.

In May 1937, she decided to become a life-long professional nun.
In the early 1940s, Mother Teresa served as principal of St. Mary's Loretto High School, and in October 1950, Mother Teresa, along with 12 other nuns, founded the Missionaries of Charity, also known as the Franciscans.
In 1971, she received the Pope John XXIII Peace Prize and the Kennedy Award.
In 1975, he received the Albert Schweitzer International Prize.
He received the Nobel Peace Prize in 1979.
He received the Presidential Medal of Freedom in 1985.
Gold Medal of the United States Congress, 1994.
Honorary U.S. Citizen on November 16, 1996, and honorary degrees from many universities.
In October 2003, she was included in the Beatification List of the Catholic Church, where she is known as a saint of the poor, and on October 4, 2009, the Nobel Foundation named "Mother Teresa, winner of the 1979 Peace Prize," one of the three most honored recipients of the Nobel Prize in its more than 100-year history (the other two being Martin Luther King Jr. for the 1964 Peace Prize and Albert Einstein for the 1921 Physics Prize).

Mother Teresa's life credo:

1. people are unreasonable, illogical, and self-centered, always love them anyway.
2. Even if you are friendly, people still say you are selfish and have ulterior motives; no matter what, always be friendly.
3. When you are successful and surrounded by real enemies and fake friends, no matter what, always be successful.
4. Honesty and forthrightness make you vulnerable to deception and attack; no matter what, always be honest and forthright.
5. Everything you've built up over the years can be destroyed in one night.
6. If you have peace and joy, you may be envied; always be happy, no matter what.
7. If you do something good today, people tend to forget about it tomorrow; no matter what, always do something good.
8. Give the world the best you have, it may be insignificant, no matter what, always give the best to the world

PART 02

Art of incense

1. Connotations of Incense Culture

01 Olfactory & Cultural Symbiosis

Centered on aroma, incense culture blends sensory experience with cultural depth. It involves not just using incense but also selecting and appreciating it, embodying aesthetics and emotions as a timeless cultural symbol that bridges material and spiritual pursuits.

02 Spiritual & Mental Healing

The core of incense culture lies in spiritual empowerment. Ancient scholars used incense for self-cultivation; religions use it symbolically; today, its therapeutic qualities still regulate mood, relieve stress, and offer sensory and mental comfort in fast-paced life.

03 Aesthetic Expression of Life

Incense culture is a key expression of lifestyle aesthetics, reflecting a longing for elegance. From incense tool design to matching scents with settings, it blends practicality and beauty, adding ritual to daily life and conveying personal taste and philosophy.

2. History of Incense

Communicates with spirits · Purifies mind and body · Removes impurities
Aids sleep · Becomes a friend in stillness · Steals leisure from worldly dust
Never tires even with much · Feels satisfied with little
Preserves well over time · Works well with constant use

"Ten Virtues of Incense" — Huang Tingjian

• Huang Tingjian(1045–1105)

Styled Luzhi, also known as Mountain Valley Daoist and Fu Weng. Born in Xiushui, Jiangxi. A renowned scholar and calligrapher of the Northern Song, founder of the Jiangxi Poetry School. Praised as one of the "Three Ancestors" alongside Du Fu and Chen Shidao. One of the "Four Disciples of Su Shi" (with Zhang Lei, Chao Buzhi, Qin Guan). Equally famous as Su Shi ("Su-Huang"). Author of Valley Lyrics; his calligraphy is unique, ranking among the "Four Masters of the Song Dynasty".

3. Chinese Incense Culture

1. Olfactory & Cultural Symbiosis

Chinese incense culture centers on natural aromas, rooted in Chinese heritage—a fusion of scent and millennia-old traditions. It goes beyond using incense; selecting, blending, and appreciating it carry Chinese aesthetics, sentiments, and life wisdom.

2. Self-Cultivation & Spiritual Healing

Core values: spiritual empowerment and self-cultivation. Ancients used incense to express ideals, purify the mind—Confucians for self-discipline, Buddhists and Taoists for rituals. Today, it still relieves stress and brings sensory-spiritual comfort in fast-paced life.

3. Aesthetic Expression of Life

A key branch of Chinese lifestyle aesthetics, embodying the pursuit of elegance. From Boshan and Xuande censers to scents matching studies or festivals, Eastern aesthetics blend utility and beauty, adding ritual to daily life.

4. Historical Development

Pre-Qin: Burning herbs for sacrifices, establishing "aroma connects to spirits."
Qin-Han to Wei-Jin: Silk Road brought foreign spices; Chinese blending emerged; incense tied to Confucian, Buddhist, Taoist rites.
Tang-Song: Golden age; blending matured; stick incense, pastilles; incense became one of "Four Arts of Scholars."
Yuan-Ming-Qing: Sticks popularized; practical uses (insect repellent, clothing fragrance); regional schools formed, evolving into a unique cultural system that inspires modern fragrance innovation.

4. International Incense Culture

1. Global Olfactory & MulticulturalSymbiosis

International incense culture uses aroma as a cross-cultural link, a collection of scent experiences rooted in diverse civilizations. Each culture evolved its own forms, sharing common carriers (selecting, blending, appreciating) but expressing unique tastes and philosophies.

2. Cross-Cultural Spiritual Connection

Spiritual empowerment is a universal core, expressed differently: ancient Egyptians for gods and mummies; Middle East for nobility and devotion; Japanese Kōdō pursues "purity, stillness, harmony, elegance"; Europe tied incense to church and aristocracy. Today, all retain therapeutic qualities across cultures.

3. Aesthetic Expressions of Diverse Civilizations

A major part of global lifestyle aesthetics. Chinese incense pairs tools with scenes; Japanese focuses on ritual and mindset; Middle East prefers rich scents with ornate burners; Europe developed candles and colognes blending function and beauty.

4. Historical Evolution & Global Integration

c. 3000 BCE: Egypt used spices for rituals and mummification.Trade routes spread spices to Middle East, Mediterranean; Greeks and Romans integrated into religion and noble life.Medieval: Spice trade blended Eastern and Western incense—Chinese blending and Middle Eastern perfumery influenced each other.Modern: Incense moved from traditional rites to daily use, forming a global fragrance industry that preserves core traditions while enabling cross-cultural innovation.

PART 03

Aroma aesthetics and application

Fragrance Aesthetics Culture

1. Ancient Civilizations: Sacred & Practical Uses of Scent

Ancient Egypt: Used frankincense and myrrh for rituals and pharaoh embalming—as a bridge to the gods and a symbol of nobility.

Chinese Civilization: Incense entered ritual systems in the Pre-Qin era; flourished in Tang-Song as part of scholarly life, while herbs like patchouli and sandalwood were used in medicine.

Middle East: A hub of spice trade; mastered essential oil distillation. The Silk Road and Spice Routes connected global spices, driving early globalization.

2. Millennia of Fragrance: Diverse Penetration

Religion & Faith: Key in major rituals—Buddhist sandalwood, Christian frankincense—symbolizing purification and prayer.

Economy: Spices were as valuable as gold; Europe's demand for spices spurred the Age of Exploration, reshaping world trade.

Social Life: Scent as an invisible status marker—ancient nobles scented robes and rooms; modern fragrances express personal style.

3. Contemporary Continuation: Industry Rebirth

Traditional incense culture evolves into a mass fragrance industry. Companies blend modern tech with traditional spices to create home, car, and other products. OEM/ODM enables customized scents for markets like Southeast Asia and the Middle East. Cross-cultural fragrance exchange continues, revitalizing a thousand-year heritage.

Fragrance Aesthetics Application

– Luxury Hotel –

Fragrance in hotels brings more than just a promotion of brand charm. It leaves a deep impression on customers, making them feel comfortable and special. In this way, it helps build customers' sense of belonging to the brand and differentiates the hotel from other brands.

– Office Building –

The installation of a large perfuming system with an elegant and light fragrance can instantly elevate the office atmosphere. It allows all office workers to experience a sense of comfort and cleanliness in a tidy working environment, which in turn significantly boosts office efficiency.

– Malls & Supermarkets –

Incense gives off a pleasant smell when diffused through an aroma diffuser. It can soothe customers' impatience and arouse their curiosity. Research by marketing experts indicates that fragrance is an essential tool in marketing, capable of boosting sales.

Fragrance Aesthetics Application

– K T V –

Fragrance creates a pleasant, entertaining atmosphere, helping consumers relax, boost enjoyment, and increase purchase desire—reinforcing brand memory and encouraging repeat visits.

– Beauty Salon –

It can effectively assist beauty lovers in relieving stress and physical fatigue. Moreover, it plays a role in refreshing the brain and regulating emotions, which helps everyone maintain not only physical health but also a happy emotional and mental state.

– Gym –

During fitness, using incense allows plant fragrance factors to enter the body through the five senses. This helps adjust the nerves, soothe the mood, relieve mental stress, improve the mental state, and balance physiological functions, leading to a comfortable, harmonious, and unified state of body and mind.

Fragrance Aesthetics Application

– Bedroom –

In bedrooms, fragrance adds warmth and romance, relieves anxiety, promotes sleep, calms nerves, and eases stress and depression.

– Living Room–

Fragrance products are increasingly part of daily life. They enhance quality of life, uplift mood with their aroma, and reflect the user's taste.

– Bathroom –

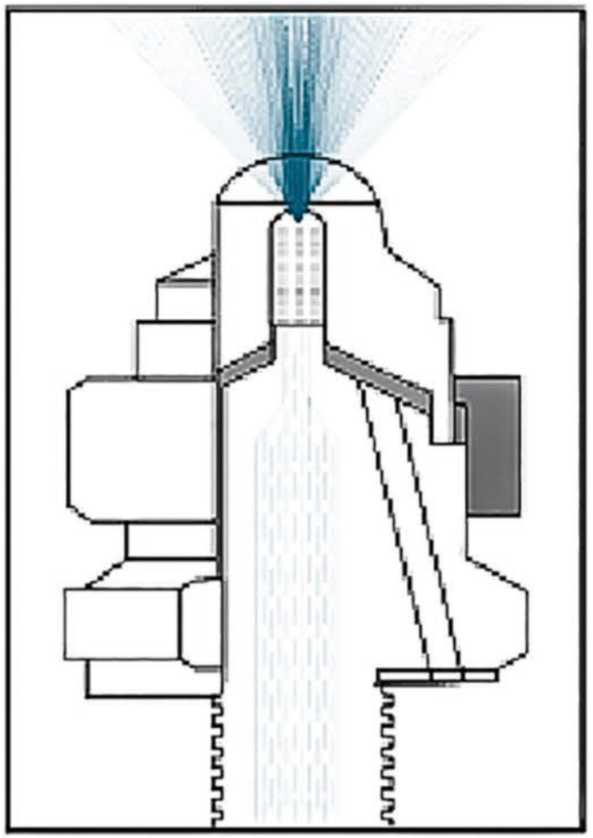

High-quality incense produces a fresh, elegant scent—perfect for removing bathroom odors and beautifying the indoor environment.

ATOMIZATION DIAGRAM

ATOMIZING CORE STRUCTURE DRAWING

SCHEMATIC DIAGRAM OF ESSENTIAL OIL ATOMIZING PARTICLES

Our fragrances at saintdeland use an advanced spray diffusion technology

How it Works: Using the principle of high-speed flow of compressed air, the perfume essential oil becomes a particle, and then the ion high-speed rotating accelerator separates the particle into a nanoscale perfume essential oil particles, and then diffuses into the space through its own diffusion system or air conditioning system, so that the whole space is filled with pleasant aroma.
Advantages: Good atomization effect、High utilization of essential oils、Diffuser has a wide range
